Here's a sampling of what some of our companies have to say about TechStars:

SendGrid

"TechStars helped us take a great idea and a great team and turn it into a great business. SendGrid would not be in existence if we had to tackle without TechStars."

- Jason Kalman, Co-Founder of SendGrid (TechStars 2010), $27M+ in venture capital raised to date.

Socialthing

"TechStars helped us focus our mission in a meaningful way. They introduced us to all the right people. Many of my mentors have become lifelong friends. To me, TechStars is a life-changing experience & a great investment of the benefit."

- Matt Daigler, Co-Founder of Socialthing (TechStars 2007), acquired by AOL, and Co-Founder of SimpleDeck.

"It's like network building on steroids. It would take 5 years to meet the people I did during the summer, if it could ever be done. If you are excited about the equity you're giving up, don't, it's worth it again in a heartbeat!"

- Andy Smith, Co-Founder of DailyBurn (TechStars 2008), acquired by AOL.

onswipe

"TechStars accelerated OnSwipe greatly even though we had already raised a $1M seed round as we entered the program. We were able to be inspired from a growing community, be challenged on product, and execute on the right concepts. TechStars was beyond valuable in letting OnSwipe get to the next step, being later stage actually makes the TechStars program even more valuable."

- Jason Brattin, Co-Founder of OnSwipe (TechStars 2011), $8M+ in venture capital raised to date.

ordr.in

"We are getting a non-stop Domo Day bump and we are being contacted from potential employees and clients from all over the world. Pretty amazing. My co-founder Paul almost fell out of his chair this morning. A 6 year engineer from a top internet company emailed us asking if we were hiring. LMAO... just please."

- David Bitter, Co-Founder of Ordr.in (TechStars 2011), funded by Google Ventures.

"When we first heard about TechStars, we considered that maybe we were too advanced and ahead of the curve to spend a summer there. With the benefit of hindsight, that would've been the biggest mistake in our company's history. Going to TechStars was the singular most positively impactful decision we made."

- Adam Seitchik, Founder and CEO of Ignighter (TechStars 2008), $4.25M in venture capital raised to date.

Conclusion:

The standard of web design is high and social media is an important channel. The office spaces seem to be less of a priority for accelerators than for coworking spaces.

The range of accelerators, incubators and angel investors can be confusing to a new entrepreneur. Clarity is the key to attracting high quality deal flow.

Innovation Warehouse needs to find a way to simplify the offering to the marketplace.
